Smallpox disease was eradicated from earth in 1977. Because of concerns that smallpox virus could be used as an agent of bioterrorism, providers should be familiar with the disease and the vaccine to prevent it. This live satellite broadcast will present information on virology, epidemiology, clinical features and diagnosis of smallpox, and the characteristics and use of smallpox vaccine.

---

Goal

To improve health care providers' ability to recognize, diagnose, and report smallpox disease.

Objectives

After this program, participants will be able to:

- Describe the epidemiology and clinical characteristics of smallpox.
- Differentiate between smallpox and other rash illnesses.
- Describe the indications for smallpox vaccine in both prerelease and postrelease situations.
- Describe the recommended management of a suspected smallpox case.

Target Audience

Physicians, nurses, pharmacists, and other health care workers serving in private offices, hospitals, and public health settings.

Presenters

Lisa D. Rotz, MD, Bioterrorism Preparedness and Response Activity, CDC

William L. Atkinson, MD, MPH, National Immunization Program, CDC

Other CDC and Department of Health and Human Services experts
